

Here at the Roundhouse we continue to try out new activities and ideas, and it's been really exciting to see the progress the team has made during the last year. We've launched our online radio station, held our first fundraising gala, and worked with new partners from across London and the UK to put on amazing public performances and to develop innovative work with and for young people.

ON AIR

I strongly encourage you to log on to Roundhouse Radio – www.roundhouse.org.uk/radio – our independent youth led internet radio station that broadcasts directly from the Roundhouse. Young people who have progressed through courses here now manage the station and have full editorial control. Our vision for Roundhouse Radio is to be recognised as a national youth led station and as a voice for young people in the UK.

GALA

We held the 'Roundhouse Rock and Roll Circus' on 12 June 2008. It was our first large-scale gala event to support the work of the Roundhouse, especially its projects and courses for 11-25 year olds. Young people compered the event and the gala dinner was followed by performances and testimonials from participants in our creative programme alongside a fantastic line-up of professional artists – Ray Cooper, Beverley Knight, Nick Mason, Peter Sarstedt, Suggs and Toyah Wilcox. Mervyn Davies auctioned lots, kindly donated by friends and associates of the Roundhouse and, overall, the evening raised nearly £900,000. Now we're planning the next gala for autumn 2010.

RENEWED SUPPORT

One of our main aims during this period has been to work to renew funding partnerships that were coming to an end, as well as to identify and establish relationships with new funding partners. I and my fellow Trustees are particularly grateful to the Paul Hamlyn Foundation for their continued significant support of our creative programme for young people, to the John Lyons Charity and Medicor Foundation for their generous second grant towards our work with young people, and to ICAP for their magnificent grant to support our outreach programme for young people.

I would, of course, like to thank all our funders for their great generosity, particularly Arts Council England and Camden Council for their continued support. I would also like to extend my personal thanks to the other organisations and individuals who support the Roundhouse vision in so many ways. Thank you to the performers and audiences and young people that bring the building to life – my wife, Sarah, and I have enjoyed so many performances at the Roundhouse this last year. Thank you too to Marcus Davey and to my fellow Board members for their leadership over the year. And, finally, a very big thank you to all the Roundhouse staff, without whom none of this could happen.

I very much hope to see you at the Roundhouse soon.

LOOKING BACK ON THE YEAR

MARCUS DAVEY, CHIEF EXECUTIVE & ARTISTIC DIRECTOR, THE ROUNDHOUSE TRUST

Our main objectives during this period were to:

- bring the artistic and young people's creative programmes closer together
- broaden the scope and diversity of the programmes
- expand the portfolio of funding partners and generate a substantial amount of donations from the first Roundhouse Gala in June 2008
- develop the online presence of the Roundhouse

You will be able to read more about these aims on the following pages, but I wanted to mention some personal highlights.

PARTNERSHIPS

During the year we set up a number of new partnerships, some of which led to immediate collaboration and others of which will bear fruit in the longer term. Working with Sadler's Wells for the first time, we brought Hofesh Shechter to the Roundhouse for London's first 'dance gig', and we began to work closely with the National Youth Orchestra and Rockarchive. We also enhanced existing partnerships, for example with the BBC who held the third Electric Proms at the Roundhouse.

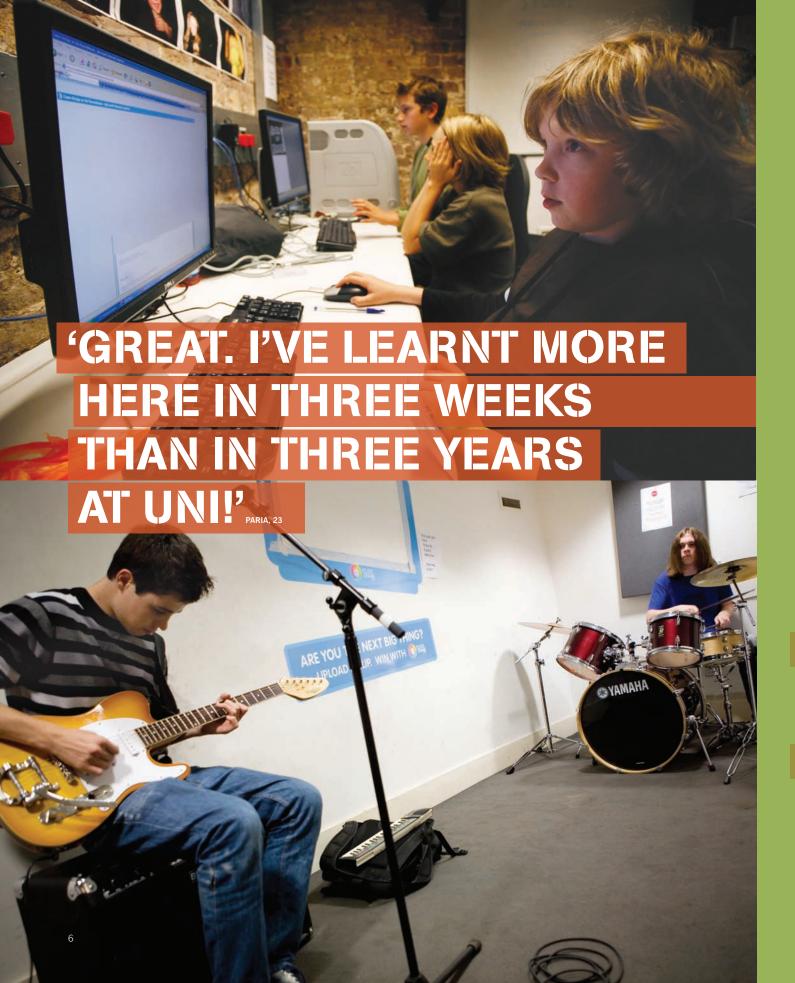

ONLINE BROADCASTS

An important part of our commitment to working with young people, and engaging new audiences, is our programme of online broadcasts. They're an excellent way to extend the reach of the Roundhouse to audiences who may not otherwise have an opportunity to come here.

Production crews for the broadcasts are made up entirely of young people who have progressed through the Roundhouse Studios' creative programme. Over 5,000 people logged on for five live events in 2008/09 – video broadcasts of Hofesh Shechter, Emerging Proms and Shpongle, plus the National Youth Orchestra and Joaquin Cortes on Roundhouse Radio – and we'll increase our output in coming years.

I feel immensely privileged to work in an organisation that is so focused on young people. I'd like to thank them for the energy, ideas and creativity they bring to their work here. And, as always, I'd like to thank our wonderful performers, donors, volunteers, audiences, Board of Trustees and my inspiring and hard working colleagues for their support and commitment during the year.

YOUNG PEOPLE

In 2008/09 we significantly expanded the opportunitie we offer young people, providing a more balanced mix between employer-led vocational programmes and youth-led initiatives.

OPEN ACCESS & OUTREACH

Open Access and Outreach provision resulted in nearly 2,500 people attending a total of 32,559 times. Through Open Access, young people came in their own time and had a choice of 126 creative projects (1,032 sessions), resulting in 2,536 enrolments. We saw a significant increase in the independent use of the Roundhouse Studios facilities and a more dynamic and creative use of the Studio Theatre for youth-led events.

Additionally, we increased the number of Outreach projects from 23 (in 07/08) to 34, reaching young people who wouldn't otherwise have access to creative opportunities. We worked with 453 young people who could potentially be the victims of hate crime – such as Roma gypsies, the Islamic community, refugees and asylum seekers – and young people who have experienced homelessness or are at risk of offending behaviour. Some of this work was commissioned by London Boroughs of Enfield and Islington.

We also worked with 365 primary school children across four local authorities on Sing Up, a national initiative to bring more singing into the classroom. We ran 78 sessions with 28,470 attendances culminating in a performance in the Roundhouse's Main Space.

DEVELOPING PARTNERSHIPS

We're working more closely with our network of partners who refer young people to the Roundhouse, to ensure a holistic approach to the provision we offer. This year we've seen an increase in referrals from youth offending teams, Connexions services, Leaving Care, Asylum and the Refugee Council. We've continued to collaborate with key partners who complement the services we offer, such as Drake Music who specialise in music provision for young people who are physically disabled. And, once again, we've hosted the National Youth Theatre and City University and have successfully progressed young people to and from these programmes.

APPRENTICESHIPS, WORK PLACEMENTS & SHADOWING

We ran two Gallery 37 Plus programmes – a vocational apprenticeship for NEETs (not in education, employment or training). 80% of the young people completed the course and 90% of those went on to gain employment or go back into education/training. This work was funded by the Big Lottery Fund through Youth Music. We also introduced more vocational skills-based programmes, such as technical theatre and broadcasting, which led to young people shadowing and working with the technicians in the Main Space. A number of these initiatives were supported by EMI and Bloomberg with match funding from v, the youth volunteering charity. 125 young people progressed onto work placements and volunteering opportunities, and a further 22 secured paid employment at the Roundhouse as freelance trainee tutors, casual information assistants, box office staff and technicians.

YOUNG PROFESSIONALS

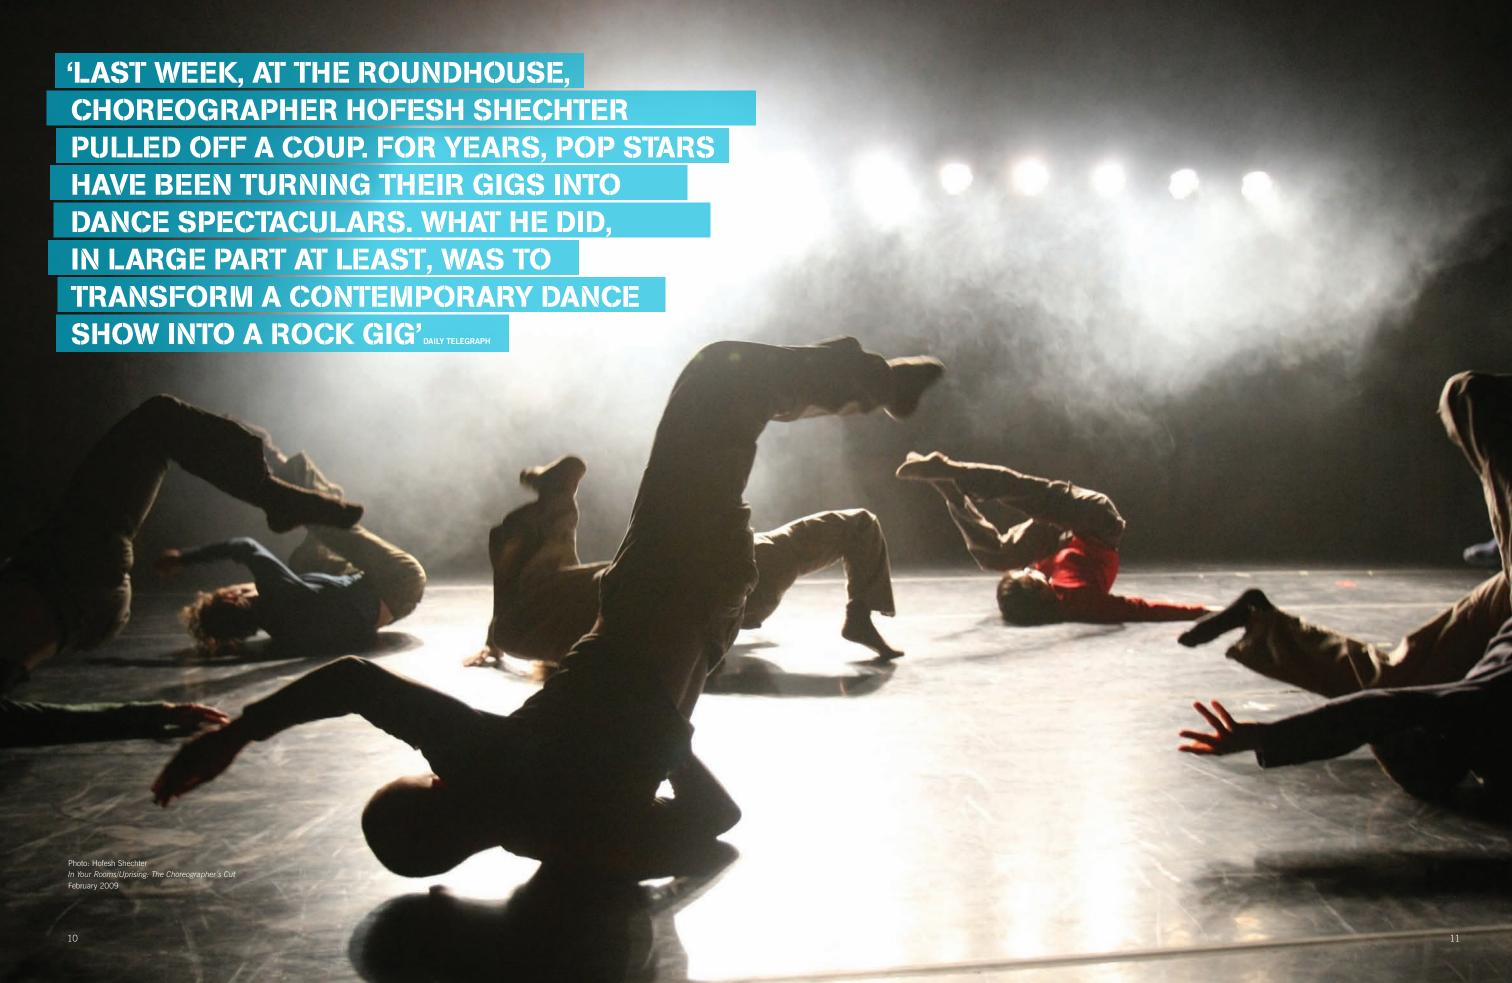

Our ambition to provide young people with opportunities for professional development resulted in the creation of the Roundhouse Theatre Company, the appointment of a young person as the station manager for Roundhouse Radio and ownership of the Roundhouse Studios magazine Redtop passing to Studios members. Also, the Roundhouse Jazz Ensemble secured more professional gigs, including engagements at in-house fundraising and corporate events.

SPECIAL INITIATIVES

In August we hosted the Roundhouse Big Round Tent at the Big Chill Festival with 11 workshops – from stencil graffiti to poetry – and performances by young artists from the Roundhouse. 25 young people promoted and assisted workshops, designed and dressed the interior of the tent, provided technical support and performed. Workshops were extremely popular with 211 12-16 year old festival-goers attending, and 90% of sessions full by the first morning. Young people produced shows on Big Chill Radio and set u guerrilla performances to the 40,000 crowd. A Roundhouse artist, Spoono, also performed on the main stage.

'CAREER OPPORTUNITIES HAVE BECOME OBVIOUS' GREG, 22

ARTISTIC PROGRAMME

This year, there was something for everyone – Shakespeare, music, dance, circus, cabaret... and wrestling. There were world-renowned companies such as the RSC, up-and-coming ones such as NoFit State, Mercury Prize winners, and 'living legends'.

ROYAL SHAKESPEARE COMPANY

The RSC's dazzling production of The Histories proved one of the UK's landmark theatre events of the year, winning Olivier Awards along the way. Inspired by the production, 24 young people, who were experiencing homelessness, produced Medea and performed with a live music accompaniment to an audience in the Studio Theatre.

MISS BEHAVE'S VARIETY NIGHTY

We commissioned established UK cabaret artist Miss Behave to curate a variety show which ran throughout August 2008. It included a number of UK performers and aerial artists alongside international artists. Young people supported the production, carrying out a night of filming, working as runners and operating follow spots.

MUSIC

Highlights ranged from Fleet Foxes, Glasvegas and Adele, to Mercury Prize winners Elbow, The Cinematic Orchestra and Q-Tip. We also had 'living legends' on stage such as Grace Jones, My Bloody Valentine and Oscar D'Leon. Young people had the opportunity to photograph live music performances and interview some of the artists.

BBC ELECTRIC PROMS

The BBC Electric Proms returned for the third year, bringing immense media profile for the Roundhouse – reaching five million people across BBC TV, radio and online. The Roundhouse Emerging Proms ran for a second year in the week following the main BBC event. Over three days, 30 emerging musicians were given the opportunity to perform and participate in masterclasses.

HOFESH SHECHTER

Billed as London's first ever 'dance gig', Shechter's show featured 20 dancers and a band of over 30 musicians. This was our first collaboration with Sadler's Wells.

NOFIT STATE CIRCUS

The year ended on a high with the opening of NoFit State Circus' three-week run of their latest production, $Tab\acute{u}$. Workshops on circus skills, music, poetry and photography, for 12-19 year olds, ran alongside the production.
