

VISUAL STORY FOR THE TIN SOLDIER

The show you are coming to see is being performed at the Roundhouse.

This is what the Roundhouse looks like from the outside:

You will enter the building through the large glass doors.

When you come in you will see the box office where you might need to pick up your tickets. Sometimes there is a queue of people here collecting their tickets.

If you already have your tickets you can bypass the box office.

There may be music playing in this area and staff walking through the building to get to their offices.

The Tin Soldier performance will happen in the Studio Theatre on the ground floor. To get to the studio theatre you will need to travel down the corridor at the side of the stairs. Please ask a staff member if you need help.

On your way to the Studio Theatre you will go past our café called MADE. It has quite bright lights and plays music.

There are lots of different people who work behind the bar, making drinks and food for people who come to visit us. If you would like a drink or something to snack on, please visit MADE.

When you get to the end of the corridor, there is a big sign above a door that says “Studio Theatre” this is where the play will be.

There will be a member of staff at the door to welcome you to your performance and show you to your seats.

They will also look at your tickets and will either scan them with a small machine or tear them at the edges.

Inside the studio theatre, there are 94 red seats that are set out in rows. You might need to go up the steps to get to your seat.

The stage will be set out with colourful boxes with paintings on them and all of the actors will be on the stage, you can come and meet them if you want to.

You can go to the toilet at any point in the show. The toilet is just outside the doors to the studio theatre. Look out for the signs on the doors to the toilets.

When the show starts the lights will get a little bit darker and the performers will take their positions on the stage or at the side of room.

During the show people may make loud sounds like laughing and at the end of the show lots of people might clap their hands. You can join in if you want to.

At the end of the show you can leave the theatre through the door you came in through.
